

My son had wet his bed every night. (except for a night or two here and there that he maybe wasn't feeling well). We had stressed to his doctor many times about our concerns of the constant bed wetting. First they said he should stop by the age of 8. Then they said not to be concerned until he is 10. As he was approaching the age of 10 and still had no dry mornings, we once again brought our concerns to the doctor. This time we were told that unless he's 12 years old, there's nothing to worry about.

But as my son was growing older and had only a few months before he was going to be 10 years old, it was clear that the constant bed wetting was affecting his happiness, his confidence and anxiety that someone would see his "pull ups" that he wore to bed.

My husband and I took matters into our own hands and searched the internet - "help for bedwetting". This is how we found the Enuresis Treatment Center.
